This gathering at Bruington marked an interesting epoch in the life of a unique and cultured community. It was the third assemblage of somewhat similar character that had been held at that place. The first - just after the close of the War - is touchingly referred to by Mr. Pollard in his address; the second was the Reunion of Company K, in the summer of 1886. It was at first intended that these exercises should be held on July 30th, the anniversary of the battle of the Crater and of the death of Edward Bagby, whose consecration to duty and courage in conflict on that eventful day furnished the chief motive for so rare an assembly. Unavoidable circumstances deferred the appointed time till August 8th, a day which all who were present will remember with abiding interest.
