Summary: "If you cannot pass a flower without burying your face in it and you're frequently caught with pollen smeared on your nose (a hazard particularly associated with lilies), you belong to the exclusive club of gardeners for whom scent is deeply important. I'm convinced pollen on the nose is a beauty mark of sorts." -- Suzy Bales The aromatherapy craze has made clear to millions of Americans what noted garden writer Suzy Bales has always known: scent has an immense influence on our moods and well-being. While most gardening books explain how to plant for color, "A Garden of Fragrance explores a unique approach that mixes fragrances to create utterly enchanting gardens that smell as good as they look. Whether you want a sweetly romantic garden, and exotic, powerfully scented garden, or a garden that perfumes the evening air, here you'll find everything you need to create a glorious garden that pleases all the senses. "A Garden of Fragrance explores the aromatic character of all your favorite plants: Seductresses are heavily perfumed flowers whose scent comes out to greet you before you even see them. They include roses, gardenias, hyacinths, lilacs, and lilies. At least one Seductress should always be in bloom in your garden.'Come-Closers , such as snowdrops, pinks, and violets, are more subtle flowers that share their fragrance only with those willing to hold them close.Moonlighters dispense their perfume from ear.
